ances might occur after the production of the list, on which he ought to found objections to it.
A short conversation then ensued upon the day of adjournment, when Mr. Burr observed that as such a measure would seem in some measure to depend upon his own consent, he should not hesitate to consent to an adjournment, provided it did not extend farther than Wednesday. Mr. Hay had no objection to that day.
Mr. Hay observed that it might be proper to have the names of the jury also called over, though not to impanel them at present. It would be premature now to impanel them as the opposite counsel had not yet possessed a sufficient time to examine the list, and as the witnesses for the United States were not present.
The names of the jurors were accordingly called.
The names of the jurors summoned from Wood County to appear before the Judges of the court of the U. States for the fifth Circuit in the Virginia District, on the 3d day of August 1807, for the trial of Col. A. Burr.

List of Petit Jurors for May Circuit Term, 1807; continued.
Names of the jurors summoned from the body of the district of Virginia for the trial of Col. A. Burr.
John Horace Upshaw, Essex. William Pope, Powhatan. Peyton Randolph, Richmond city. John Rowe, Hanover. John Roberts, Colchester. Joshua Chaffin, America. Jarvis Storrs, Henrico. Miles Seligson, do. Lewis Trubart, Hanover. Wm. Vancety, Pittsylvania. Thomas Prosser, Henrico. John Staples, Albemarle. Edward C. Stannard, Albemarle. Richard B. Goode, Chesterfield. Nathaniel Selden, Henrico. *Ezra Smock, ditto. William Wardlaw, Richmond city. Richard E. Parker, Westmoreland. John W. Ellis, Hanover. Thomas Stark, do. William White, do. William B. Chamberlaine, Henrico. David Lambert, Richmond city. Randolph Harrison, Cumberland. Wm. Holmes, Caroline. Overton Anderson, Richmond city. Hugh Mercer, Spotsylvania. David Bullock, Richmond city. Jermon Baker, Cumberland. *Edward Carrington, Richmond city. Robert Haskins, Chesterfield. William R. Fleming, Gloucester. George W. Smith, Richmond city. Armistead T. Mason, London. D. beny Minor, Albemarle. Wm. M. D. Mitchell, Stafford.
JOSEPH SCOTT,
Marshal, V. D.
These whose names are marked with * were absent: All the rest were present. Of course two only were absent, out of the whole venire. Mr. Hay then requested the marshal to deliver as soon as possible, a correct copy of this list, to the opposite counsel.
Mr. Peyton Randolph enquired whether this was a proper opportunity for any man on that panel to state his objections to the service.
The chief justice replied, that it would be better to waive any objections until the jury were about to be impaneled.
Mr. Hay wished such of the witnesses as had not appeared before, to be recognised as the others had been. And accordingly Messrs. Durcan, Nevill, McDowell and Peters were recognised by the clerk.
The deputy marshal was then about to adjourn the court; when Mr. Burr recalled to the recollection of the court the motion which he had made on a former occasion for a subpoena duces tecum addressed to the president of the U. S. That motion had been partly complied with. He wished to know of the court, whether it was not a matter of right for him to obtain a subpoena duces tecum. If it was not he should then lay a specific motion before the court.
The Chief Justice did not believe it to be the practice in Virginia to obtain such a subpoena upon a mere application to the clerk. The motion must be brought before the court itself.
Mr. Hay would say nothing on this subject, until he understood the object of the application. If it was to obtain the letter which was not formerly furnished, he would inform the opposite counsel that he had it now among his papers; and was ready to produce it.
Mr. Burr. That is one object of the application. Another is to obtain a certain communication from gen. Eaton to the president of the U. S. which is mentioned in his deposition.

Mr. Hay was not certain whether he had that communication; but believed that it was among his papers. If it was there, he would certainly produce it.
Mr. Burr. But if after a search, the gentleman finds that he has not that paper, will he consent out of court to issue a subpoena to the president of the U. S. under the qualification I have mentioned? I wish not at the present exigency, to derange the affairs of the government, or to demand the presence of the executive officers at this place. All that I want is, certain papers.
Mr. Hay could not consent to such a measure; he would rather that it should go through the regular process of the court.
Mr. Burr. Then, sir, I shall move for a subpoena duces tecum to the president of the U. S. directing him to attend with certain papers. This subpoena will issue as in the former instance. I shall furnish the clerk with a necessary specification of the paper, which I require.
The court was then adjourned to Wednesday 12 o'clock.
BY THIS DAY'S MAIL.
BOSTON, July 31.
MORE VEXATION.—We have seen a letter from a very intelligent American in London, which states that Mr. Armstrong had left Paris, to wait on Bonaparte at his head quarters; that our difficulties at the courts of St. Cloud and Madrid became more involved; and that it was evident Talleyrand intended no accommodation should take place between us and Spain.
NORFOLK, August 3.
On Saturday last, major Tezwell, aid to general Mathews, went down with the two officers and three seamen belonging to the Triumph, taken some time since by the militia of Princess Ann, and delivered them to sir Thomas Hardy, pursuant to orders from the general government.
The frigate Chesapeake, with the gunboats, went down to Craney island on Saturday last.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 7.
Letters from Liverpool mention, that but few goods will be shipped for America this season, owing to the unsettled state of affairs between this country and Great Britain.
The Orleans Gazette of June 15, has the following article:
"Portalis, the French minister for public worship, is sending missionaries to China, and they are to set off this year, accompanied by skilful astronomers."
COMMUNICATION.
There is at present time, a child of eight years old, in this city, who is undergoing the most wonderful natural operation, which this part of the world has ever yet seen.—For some time past he has constantly had a complaint in his head, which has been swelled to an unusual size. A few weeks ago, he was seized with the most excruciating pains in that part, and it was shortly after perceived that one of his under jaw bones was detaching itself entirely from the head. In a fortnight, extraordinary as it appears, one of his under jaw bones did really come out entire, and the other under jaw is at this moment forcing out in the same way. The bone already out, is replaced by a new one; and it is apparent that another bone is forming under that which is now coming out. The boy eats very heartily, and except when he is in pain, plays about with his comrades as if nothing ailed him. The above may be depended upon as an undoubted fact; the parents of the boy are very respectable in society, and have shown the bone to many who have called on them. And its truth can be vouched by most of the faculty in town, some of whom assisted Dr. Blake in extracting the bone already out, when it was nearly detached.
[Montreal paper.]
Of the truth of the above communication there can be little doubt. We are credibly informed that similar process of reproduction are frequently employed by nature in different parts of the body. A few years ago a case occurred in this city, where from disease the bone of the arm was loosened from its articulation with the socket of the shoulder, and which finally separated and came away. In its place, a new bone, perfect in its uses, was gradually formed, and the arm which had undergone this wonderful operation could be distinguished from the other only by being somewhat smaller and having the cicatrices from the preceding injuries.

DIED, in France, general de Rochambeau, aged 82, formerly a marshal of France, grand officer of the legion of honor, and commander of the French troops in the U. States during the revolutionary war.
EXTRACT.
"The force of habit and the extreme danger of fixing any bad habit, particularly that of drunkenness, may be aptly illustrated by moralizing the following piece of natural history:—
"On the coast of Norway is a dreadful whirlpool called by the natives, maelstrom, which signifies the naval of the sea. The body of the waters which form this whirlpool is extended in a circle above thirteen miles in circumference. In the midst of this stands a rock, against which the tide, in its ebb, is dashed with inconceivable fury: when it instantly swallows up all things which come within the sphere of its violence.
"No skill in the mariner, nor strength of rowing can work an escape. The sailor at the helm finds the ship at first in a current opposite to his intentions; his vessel's motion, though slow in the beginning, becomes every moment more rapid; it goes round in circles, still narrower and narrower, till at last it is dashed against the rock and entirely disappears.
"And thus it fares with the hapless youth that falls under the power of any vicious habit. At first he indulges with caution and timidity, and struggles against the stream of vicious inclinations. But every relapse carries him further down the current [the violence of which increases] and brings him still

And thus the Goddess with a smiling air:
"Know thou, O man! thy greatest good: blessing Transcendant; mild and charitable PEACE.
I am that wiser power, whose mild influence Checks heedless mortals in their wild career
Of murderous rage, and turns them from those arts,
Which ought alone to act beasts of the wood;
To these which more become beings created With the Almighty's image on them stamp'd;
To those which plenteous freedom give; nourish
The virtues of the just, and bless mankind."
Thus spoke the maid: the charm as quick dissolv'd,
And left a pleasing trace of anxious thought.

ALEXANDRIA,

MAVOR'S

UNIVERSAL SPELLING-BOOK,

Accompanied by a progressive series of Easy and Familiar Lessons.

Intended as an Introduction to the first Elements of the English Language.

THE AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

NOTWITHSTANDING the vast number of books for children in the Nursery, which have been written within these few years by persons of distinguished abilities and sanctioned with their names, it must still be allowed, that there has not appeared an introduction to Reading, for the general use of schools, that rises above the level of the vulgar, though popular compilations of Dwyer, Dilworth and Fennell. The superiority has been attended to with sedulous care and writers of the first eminence have contributed to rearrange the fabric of learning, while the foundation has most invariably been suffered to be laid, by the mouths of less and ignorant workmen. The consequence has frequently been, as might be expected from such a procedure, that the taste has been vitiated at the very commencement; and it has often proved more difficult to remove error, than it would have cost pains to plant original the principles of truth.

For the neglect we have alluded to, it would be impossible to produce any consistent reason. Perhaps the pride of acknowledged literature could not stoop to an occupation reputed so mean, as that of compiling a spelling Book. Yet to lay the first stone of a noble edifice has ever been a task delegated to the most honorable hands; and to sow the first seeds of useful learning in the infant mind, is an employment that cannot be disgraced to the most illustrious talents. Bishop Lord wrote an excellent English grammar, and several other works of rank in literature, have benefited the public by similar productions; yet it is in vain that grammars are written, if no one has learned to read; it is in vain that the sublimest discourses are made in any art or science, if the generality of the world are precluded from profiting by them, for want of previous instruction in the first principles with which they are connected.

The Editor of the following sheets is fully convinced of the solidity of his inferences and the justice of his marks, in whatever light his present undertaking may be regarded. Humble or degrading as it may appear to those who, perhaps, have no higher pretensions than himself, he cannot think that labor dishonorable, which is so manifestly beneficial to the rising generation; nor has he any reason to fear, but that the candid and judicious will appreciate his motives and his production they deserve. Our sentiments and our conduct are influenced by early impressions than many seem willing to allow. The stream will always flow tintured with the nature of its source. A just maxim, a humane principle, a germ of knowledge early imbibed, will be permanent to the last. The first books we read can never be forgotten, nor the principles they inculcate, evanscented. Hence, in the prosecution of this work, care has been taken to make every lesson or essay, as far as the nature and intention of the plan would allow, tend to some useful purpose of information or instruction. Even in the more easy progressive lessons, where sense was limited to a single syllable, it is hoped something will be found to please and to improve, nor will this be thought difficult. To tread in the steps of a Barbault, a Jauffret, an Edgeworth, a Trimmer, a Berguin, and to accompan-date their labors to the benevolent design in hand, only acquired a little taste and judgment, which any person conversant with education and books ought to possess.

In short, the Editor feels inclined to believe, that this manual for early youth will be found much better adapted for the purpose than any that has preceded it, and in consequence he anticipates the kind patronage of Teachers in general. It probably will tend to facilitate the labour, by furnishing subjects more agreeable to the pupil, than the dry insipidity of most books of the kind; and it cannot fail to redound to their credit also, by giving youth an opportunity of gaining as much general knowledge as could be crammed within the limits prescribed.

Indeed it was a remark of the publisher, (to whom British youth are under singular obligations for furnishing them with many valuable opportunities of improvement) when he earnestly pressed this work on the Editor's attention "That a Spelling Book frequently contains the whole library of a poor child, unless when that poor child is into his hands, & it consequently ought to contain as great a variety of useful matter as the pupil will permit." The compilation has been formed first on this principle.
